the island...

"Seductive Ammouliani, full of winding trails,
your climate's inspiring, your serene beaches free of gales.

Jewel of Halkidiki, beloved by tourists everywhere, caressed by the sea breeze, daughter of the summer fair.

*Excerpt by local poet
Zafroula Andriotis*

Ammouliani is a small, hospitable island in the Halkidiki region in Northern Greece. Its most distinguishing features are the rolling hills that shape the landscape, the numerous olive groves that cover every square inch of unclaimed ground and the magnificent beaches with emerald-green waters. The unspoiled beauty of Ammouliani offers visitors the peace and serenity they are looking for and guarantees an unforgettable vacation.

Ammouliani is located between the Aghion Oros and Sithonia peninsulas, and is the only inhabited island in the Halkidiki region.

Historically, Ammouliani Island belongs to the famous Vatopedion Monastery of Mount Athos. In early 1925, the island was given to the refugees from the islands of the Sea of Marmara in Asia Minor. The refugees brought with them their culture, their customs and their way of life. Being already familiar with the ways of the sea, fishing became their main source of livelihood.

Nowadays, tourism is the main source of income for the people of Ammouliani. The island attracts thousands of foreign and domestic visitors each year.

A short tour of the peaceful, picturesque streets of the island will take you to the highest point of the settlement, the main square. At that point you'll find "Helianthus" waiting for you. A guesthouse designed and created by the Vassiliou family,

"Helianthus" is much more than a family business, it's the dream of a lifetime...

The Guesthouse "Helianthus" is not just a special place to spend your vacation. It's a place of hospitality, serenity and quality design that aims to create the ideal atmosphere for those who seek peace and relaxation.

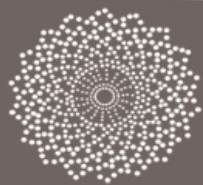

The guesthouse follows all the tenets of traditional architecture, making full use of natural light, while the clear facade and the harmonious integration with its surroundings are its most important distinguishing features.

Guesthouse "Helianthus" offers nine rooms in total (twin and triple rooms). Each room has its own identity, but all of them combine comfort and simplicity. Each one of our rooms draws its inspiration from the most beautiful flowers that grace Greek nature: iasmos, iris, hibiscus dianthus, anthemis, amarylis, althea, hyacinthus and valeriana are at your disposal for an unforgettable stay!

This is what Guesthouse "Helianthus" has to offer to the discerning visitor.

The majestic church of Agios Nikolaos, built in 1865 on the island's central square, is one of the most attractive and popular landmarks in the area. The same is true for the Club (Leschi), the Old School and the Museum of Popular Culture.

The old shipyard or "Arsanas" is another important landmark of Ammouliani. It's a typical example of the distinctive architecture of Mount Athos, where the monks used to shelter their boats when the weather wouldn't allow them to sail safely.

As evidenced by the island's name, which is derived from the word "Ammos" (Greek for "sand"), Ammouliani is home to heavenly sandy beaches. Discover a hidden paradise, filled with exotic beaches, peaceful islands and picturesque bays.

Ammouliani is a unique pearl of the Aegean Sea, sheltered in the shadow cast by the impressive monasteries of Mount Athos.
